PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

Dear Colleagues,

PADE has been on the forefront of developmental education in Pennsylvania for thirty years. Our Learning Centers have expanded, instructional strategies have improved, new advising models are in place, and we have strengthened our pedagogy and focus. The most current research suggest that developmental education will continue to be an integral part of helping students complete college, but we must do so on even tighter budgets. Other research contends that strategies and techniques we've used in the past are no longer as effective, and there is a call for a new direction and innovative policies. While we have come a long way, it is clear we need to look forward instead of reflecting on achievements.

PADE's statewide conference offers one of the best opportunities to participate in innovative workshops and presentations and to connect with leaders in developmental education from across the state. The Conference Planning Team, led by Marie Ulmen, has been working hard to provide you with a worthwhile experience. The Conference theme, The Many Faces of Developmental Education: Working Together for Success, reflects the diversity, energy, and vision for reflecting on developmental education in the state and nation. Jane Neuburger, NADE's President-Elect, will be our keynote speaker, and our plenary session will be led by Dr. Mike Murray, a noted authority on Autism. Also, I invite you to join your colleagues and friends to an evening of good cheer and jazz on Thursday, a great way to unwind after a day of workshops and presentations. This year's conference at Double Tree Resort in Lancaster, PA, also promises to offer the bucolic and relaxing setting of Amish country.

In closing, please visit the PADE website, www.pade-pa.org, to find the most up-to-date information about the Conference, including a link to the hotel and applications for awards. We look forward to seeing you!

Elisa Cohen
PADE President

KEYNOTE

April 7, 2011 9:00 A.M.
Jane Neuburger

As the Director of the Tutoring & Study Center at Syracuse University, Jane oversees the hiring, training, and supervising of over 100 tutors who work with close to 10% of the undergraduates. Jane has been in education for over 35 years, teaching in junior and senior-level high schools as well as at the college-level; in grants-funded programs, and in developmental and non-developmental classrooms. She is fascinated with students' reading, writing, and literature skills and has taught study strategies, first-year seminars, critical/creative thinking, children's literature, and adolescent literature. She is visiting faculty at the world-renowned Kellogg Institute for Developmental Educators and is a Fellow of ACDEA, the American Council of Developmental Education Associations.

Jane is proud to serve as President-elect of NADE; it is a continuation of her efforts at the state and national level to promote students' success through best practices, evaluation, and research. Most recently, she served as chair of the NADE Certification Council and as a co-author of the chapter on assessing developmental coursework in the NADE Self-Evaluation Guides.

PLENARY SESSION

April 8, 2011 9:00 A.M.
Michael J. Murray, M.D.

Assistant Professor Michael Murray M.D. is Acting Division Director of Child & Adolescent Psychiatry and Medical Director of Child & Adolescent Services at Penn State Hershey. He oversees the Developmental Disorders Clinic, which offers evaluation and assessments, as well as, ongoing treatment for children and adolescents with autism spectrum disorders. Dr. Murray's clinical research seeks to enhance social skills functioning and to increase facial processing abilities in children with autism.
